

Jenny Whidden is a climate change reporter for the Daily Herald and a corps member with Report for America, a national service program that places journalists into local newsrooms to report on under-covered issues. A Rolling Meadows, Illinois, native, Whidden previously wrote for the Granite State News Collaborative, the Chicago Tribune and the New Jersey Star Ledger before landing back home in northern Illinois to cover the local impacts of climate change for the Herald. Whidden's beat encompasses a range of topics including energy, transportation and conservation. When she isn't writing, Whidden is hiking, reading or spending time with her cat Princeton.
