The League's Redistricting Impact

Three years after its creation, the League's People Powered Fair Maps™ program (PPFM) released its impact report highlighting the importance of everyday involvement in redistricting. The program, which launched in the wake of the landmark case Rucho v. LWV of North Carolina, aimed to increase awareness of and participation in the decennial community districting process.

The report found that through PPFM, over 1.4 million people were engaged in local districting, 5 states implemented community-drawn maps, and 6 states increased their process's transparency.

Money is on Congress's Mind

The Senate Committee on Rules and Administration held a hearing on the DISCLOSE Act, which would increase transparency in campaign finances.

The League's CEO Virginia Kase Solomón spoke in favor of the legislation, stating, "Voters have the right to know who is making large campaign contributions to influence elections.”

Responses to January 6

Senators announced a bipartisan deal to reform the Electoral Count Act and Presidential Transition Act. The bill's reforms would clarify the roles of elected officials and the Vice President in the election process, protecting the nation from future attacks like the January 6 insurrection.

The announcement comes on the heels of the bipartisan House Select Committee hearings on the January 6 attack, which ended on July 21. The League looks forward to the committee's findings, which are expected to be shared this fall.
