Editor's Note: This edition of The Voter is printable, clickable and will be available at LWVCDC.ORG

Correction: This event will be Friday Oct. 18, not Thursday.

Election results are not official until they are certified by each county and state. Election deniers are already working to disrupt that process under cover of their claimed concerns about "election integrity."

Join the Leagues of Women Voters of Lower Merion & Narberth and Central Delaware County for a virtual panel discussion about this year's election certification process and other possible election legal issues on Thursday, Oct. 18 at Noon.

Speakers include Marian K. Schneider - ACLU of Pennsylvania; Jill Greene - Voting and Elections Manager at Common Cause PA, and James Allen - Delaware County Elections Director. Moderator will be attorney Jaime Mogil, president of the League of Women Voters of Lower Merion/Narberth, an election integrity and voting rights expert. Register HERE.

National Voter Education Week is October 7-11, a nonpartisan national civic holiday and voter education campaign. During this week of interactive education, voters have the opportunity to find their polling location, understand their ballot, make a plan to vote, and inspire others to get involved. Video of the Month: Mail-in Voting

The Delco election board announced Friday, Oct. 4, that it had sent out nearly 60,000 mail ballots that should have arrived in voters' mailboxes by Saturday.

A second batch of 5,500 will go out and should be received by Oct. 9. If you applied by Sept. 30 and didn't receive your ballot by Oct. 9, call the hotline -- 610-891-VOTE (8683).

Batches will go out weekly as people continue to apply for ballots.

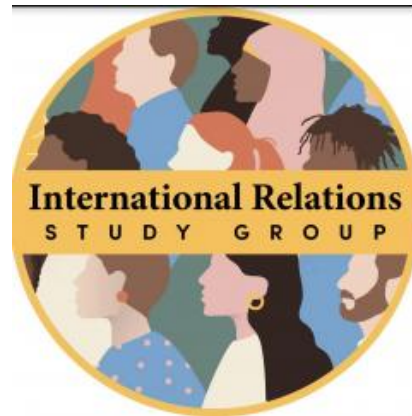

To check whether you've applied for a mail ballot and have been sent one, go to vote.pa.gov, scroll down to voter registration and enter your name, county and zip code. The resulting web page will tell you if your registration is up to date and whether you are listed as having applied for a mail-in ballot. It will also tell you the date it was sent out. Use the same link to answer all your PA election and voting questions. Watch this short video.

Warning: Text/Email Scams Victimize Voters

The Department of State has issued a warning telling voters to beware of scam emails and texts meant to confuse or disenfranchise them.

The messages tell voters they are not registered to vote or that their voting information is incorrect. The scammers then urge voters to click on a phony link or call their board of elections, while providing a fake phone number. If League members encounter any victims, tell them to check their registration status on Vote411 or the state election site, or call the Delaware County Election Bureau at 610-891-4673.
